This fee is for guidance only. It is up to the doctors and insurance companies to consult an acceptable payment. This guide reflects advice from the Information Commissioner's Office that the use of SARs (subject access requests) is not suitable for providing medical information to the insurance industry. Our guide on SARs for insurance purposes Allowance GP report for insurance applicants £104 GP additional reports of £27 Provide life guarantee report should go smoothly with minimal disruption to their doctors and patients. We expect doctors to comply with the following principles: information should be provided in the requested and perfect manner as possible. This should prevent the issuance of additional questionnaires or unsuitable requests for clarification, which do not order further payments the report should be refunded within 20 working days from the date of receipt of the request, sometimes earlier in exceptional circumstances when the insurance applicant or postponed due to medical disclosure on the application form, insurance company giving reasons for the deterioration to the applicant if a new or less regulated medical condition is disclosed on the GPR or following a medical examination, and is not disclosed on the application form, the insurance company will inform the GP's medical report for life guarantee purposes covered by the Access Act to the Medical Report 1988 under this Act, if the patient requests to see the report before it is delivered, the GP should refrain from sending it Once the patient has seen the report they can withdraw their consent to be delivered. Fees are offered to GPs by several private medical insurance companies for medical reports on potential customers for private medical insurance. We do not recommend fees for this work and will advise doctors to charge at their personal rates. Several insurance companies have introduced target reports for life guaranteees and income protection. The report is shorter than a GP report and requires information on one condition. The BMA does not support the introduction of these targeted reports, and therefore there are no recommended fees. We would advise that doctors charge at their own rates to carry out targeted reports. There is no obligation to the doctor to carry out this work, but you should consider how this might affect the relationship of the doctors. Doctors are not bound by their terms of service to prepare this report, and are entitled to a charge at their own pace to prepare for the report. Consent is required before information is disclosed to the insurance company for the purpose of verifying claims, for example before the company organizes the repatriation of policyholders (or their relatives if their illness affects the policyholder's leave period) taken sick overseas. In such cases, the company must approach the policyholder, and/or their relatives, for permission and give evidence to the doctor. If the policyholder, and/or their relatives, are not competent to give consent, the doctor may release the necessary information in the best interests of a person. The insurance company will explain the necessary information in each case. The view of the BMA is that if the above conditions are met then GPs should be intended to cooperate with any reasonable request. However, GPs cannot be threatened with any threat that certain actions will affect the validity of patient insurance and the repatriation process. Patients have the right to see reports written about them by doctors with whom they have a 'normal' patient relationship. Taken through the consent process. Learn about rights Your job is added with an insurance company or employer seeking a report. Access to PDF/101KB Medical Reports This fee is an example the fees below can be used as a guide, but not agreed. Working hospital doctors show elements of the time in which £215.30 Extract from record £53.60 Written report (e.g. 45 minutes) £162.80 Medical examination and report or written report of complex and opinion (e.g. 60 min) £215.30 Session fee (e.g. 3 hours) £429.55 Medical board and tribunal One case (e.g. 45 minutes) £162.80 Two cases (for example 90 minutes) £269.40 Session (e.g. 3 hours) £426.95 Daily rate (session x 2) £860.60 Lecture One hour £215.95. 30 Two hours £317.75 Three hours £420.20 BMA set and agree a fee schedule with various Government departments and agencies for routine work (e.g. certificates, reports and inspections) that doctors are asked to promise. If there is no consent, the doctor may prescribe and agree their own fees in advance to carry out the work. Estimate how long it will take give a clear indication of the expected duration of the working time it will take. As with all non-NHS work, it is important that professional fees be agreed in writing before agreeing to carry out any work. Doctors who fail to take these precautions may have difficulty recovering fees and, in such situations, the BMA will not be able to intervene to resolve the dispute. Complete the task as soon as possible When receiving an undertaking to pay the doctor's professional fees at an agreed rate, work needs to be completed as soon as possible and processed in a normal way. Producing high-quality reports It is important that if the correct professional fees will be charged, high-quality reports should be produced and processed quickly, usually within 10 working days of receipt of the request. Government contracts with GPs cover medical services to NHS patients but in recent years more and more organisations have engaged doctors in various non-medical work. Sometimes the only reason a GP asked is because they are in a position of trust in the community or because insurance companies, employers or public bodies want to ensure that the information provided to them is true and accurate. The following questions and answers are taken from advice by the British Medical Association (BMA) to help patients understand the fees charged by the GP. 1. Does a GP need to do non-NHS work for their patients? With certain limited exceptions such as a GP confirming that patients are not suitable for GP's jury service DO NOT need to carry out non-NHS work. However, many GPs will always try to help their patients and carry out this work. 2. Why sometimes take my GP long to complete my form/letter? Time spent completing the form and preparing a report takes a GP away from patient medical care. GPs have a growing workload of forms that must be prioritised against offering appointments. 3. I am need a GP signature—what's the problem? When a GP signs a certificate, completes a report or writes a letter it is a condition of staying in the Medical Register (which allows them to practice as a doctor) that they simply sign what they know is true. To complete the the easiest form of doctor may need to check the entire patient's medical records. Cheerfulness or inaccuracies can have serious consequences for doctors with the General Medical Council (doctor's regulatory body) or even the Police. 4. Who sets the fees and why do different doctors charge different fees? The BMA proposes fees that may apply in certain circumstances however this is intended for guidance only. Doctors are not obliged to charge the rate proposed by the BMA and the level of fees will generally reflect the amount of work and time involved. 5. Why is the GP charge to complete the burn form? A deceased person cannot be curbed until the cause of death is certainly known and properly recorded. Before the burning of work occurs two certificates must be signed, one by a GP and one by another doctor. The completion of this form is not part of the DOCTOR's NHS duty and fees are usually applied to funeral directors who generally hand over costs to families. This fee is agreed with the National Association of Funeral Directors, National Association of Allied and Independent Funeral Directors and Cooperative Funeral Care. Death Certificate is a separate form and is completed for free 6. What notice is required to complete the report and letter? To enable the practice of planning a 4-week GP time notice is required despite the many that have been resolved in this time. Where patients have this urgent request should be explained to the receptionist who will note the request however it is not always possible for other clinically more immediately delayed work.
